WALWORTH FAIR IS BEST IN HISTORY: RAINS INTERFERE

(By Gazette Correspondent.)
 Elkhorn, Sept. 22.—The Walworth county fair, the greatest in its history (so many say) has closed. Two days of rain spoiled a record-breaking attendance of hogs, cattle, machinery, autos, grain and corn, seen here. Judges and visitors from afar were greatly surprised at the blight of the institution and the volume of the exhibits.

One feature of the fair was the display booths of the Farmers clubs. The committees from the various clubs of Sugar Creek, Linn and Worthville worked hard to make their booths attractive and to prove their interest in the fair.

Frank Drake and J. H. Hoff had representation in the Boys and Girls Junior clubs. Mr. Drake's Worthville Juniors were outstanding in the fair.

The calf contest made possible by the combined efforts of the fair and the county executive committee members and the county agent did not pass unnoticed. Thirteen Junior and nine Senior calves were outstanding in the judging hall. The food value of dairy products such as a pound of butter, a quart of milk and a pound of cheese, was graphically illustrated. The splendid corn gave the judges some work in all classes. Charles Fountain and Franklin Walsh shared honors in the open class. In the senior ear samples and in Miss Martin's school contests, there were evidences of "Walworth County in the Corn Belt."

BANKERS URGED TO BE FRIENDS OF LABORERS

(Special to the Gazette.)
 Madison, Sept. 22.—The attitude of laboring men of bankers is solely the result of a misunderstanding and that "bohemianism" is nothing but the philosophy of belligerent disappointment. It is the effect of a statement of Solomon Leviathan, bank president of Madison, in a letter to the American Bankers association. The national organization is to hold a meeting at St. Louis Sept. 29, and Mr. Leviathan has written urging that the association take up the subject of making small loans to laboring men and cultivate the business of the working classes.

"The antagonistic attitude of the workingman toward the banks is solely the result of misunderstanding," says Mr. Leviathan. "Very few workmen have any real contact with bankers. The man in the factory thinks of the man with money as an implacable enemy; and the banker standing on the corner, in his incarnation of all the evils of capitalism. He has not learned that a banker prospers only in so far as he combines the money of the laborer, in the credit is placed at the disposal of the workingman. He has not learned that a banker wants to loan money to the man who has money. He thinks of a bank as a place where you put money, not as a place where you get money."

"Bohemianism, after all, is nothing but the philosophy of belligerent disappointment. Show a man a peaceful way out of difficulties and he won't select a violent way. Most of the workingman's trouble are financial."

COMPANY G GETS NEW ARMY RIFLES

FIELD ANIMAL DUGOUTS
 (By Adeline Belle Beard)
 We walk so carelessly through the fields, thinking so little of the busy life all about us and nothing at all of the life being lived under ground. Let there be many strange homes down there. One belongs to the POCKET GOPHER and perhaps at our very feet is a little pile of earth called a gopher hill, which the animal has thrown out of his burrow.

The pocket gopher is something like a mole but bigger and with a large open pocket on each cheek. His fur is soft and silky, his legs short and his front feet have long, strong nails for digging. That is what the gopher does, he digs and he eats, and he digests, and he turns out in this way and that in his search for tender roots and in avoiding stony obstructions, until the passage is long and devious with holes at the top here and there where he throws out the loose earth. But somewhere in that tunnel there are chambers in which he stores away bits of roots and other food carried there in his handy cheek pockets. Being a night animal you are not likely to see him unless he is dug up and made to show himself, which is often the case when he invades a garden and parades so freely of the roots planted there.

WHERE THE POCKET GOPHER LIVES

There are homes above as well as under ground out here in the field. The little HARVEST MOUSE rests directly on the ground and her home is sometimes mistaken for a bird's nest. The mouse is only about five inches long when stretched out, and weighs less than a penny. He is small and is smaller and has short ears. His color is russet brown with white underparts and she has small white feet.

How to Study Skillfully

CAN YOU SEE WHAT YOU READ?

(By Katherine Taylor)
 Francis W. Parker School.
 Some people see with their ears, and others hear with their eyes. I know a woman who has been blind since her childhood. She sees with her fingers and her ears. "Let me see your new coat," she says, and rapidly her fingers slip over its surface. Her mind has a clear picture of the coat.

"We all need the power that this woman has, when we 'read to ourselves.' 'D-o-g, dog,' reads the little girl but the word 'dog' should be more than just 'd-o-g.' It should be a leaping puppy, or a sleepy old hound, or some other real dog, great or small, shaggy or smooth, actually doing what the d-o-g in the book is said to be doing.

As we grow older, reading is not such hard work. We read more and more. But the sad fact is that often the older we grow the less real fun we have with reading. To keep on having fun with reading, we must see, hear, smell, taste, and feel with our imagination.

Think of the traveler in the Jack London story, alone in a blizzard on the plains of Alaska. "He was lost in the blinding storm." Let yourself be with him. Feel the sharp crystals, the growing numbness, the keen wind, the struggle against an icy death.

History is not dull if you learn to see it this way. It is a story of adventures. "The company was surprised in ambush." See that group of soldiers, hiding, waiting tensely for the attack, caught unready, suffering the shame of surrender.

Copy of League Covenant Free

Have your friends been talking it, study of it is by no means a tedious task. Never before since time began have men given such elaborate care to the preparation of a document. Never before has the world stood by and watched with anxiety the phrasing of a few short articles. Never has there been written a covenant that was intended so greatly to affect the destinies of the peoples of the world. Never was there a paper which so richly deserved the study of all mankind.

We offer free the covenant of the League of Nations. This publication was printed for distribution by the League to Enforce Peace. Send for it today. Fill out the attached coupon, enclose two cent stamp for return postage, and mail to Washington as indicated.

There probably has not. Few people have ever seen the actual text of the covenant. Few have studied it. Yet it is a simple and readable sort of document. In it there is not a single "whereas." It is expressed in plain and straightforward language. It is not very long. The

FIVE-YEAR AVERAGE GUIDE FOR WHEAT.

More wheat should be sown this fall than was the average in pre-war years, but not so much should be sown as was sown last year. This is the outstanding fall farming recommendation of the United States department of agriculture, which is watching the changes of world supply and demand while European countries are getting back to normal in food production and thus affecting the market for American products. The department's suggestions are based on the observations of specialists who were sent abroad to report on foreign conditions and probable needs, and on the most extensive reports it has been possible to obtain from other sources in this country and other countries.

As to winter wheat, the department suggests that 42,000,000 acres be sown this fall to this crop, and that 20,000,000 acres be sown in 1920 to spring wheat, making a probable aggregate production in 1920 of 830,000,000 bushels, of which 200,000,000 bushels would be available for export after home needs are met. This production would approximately equal the average yield of wheat in the United States for the five years 1915 to 1919 inclusive. The five-year average is thought to be a safe guide for American farmers.

The suggested acreage for fall-sown wheat is approximately 55 percent of the area sown in the fall of 1918 and is about the same as was sown in the fall of 1917. The suggested area for spring wheat is approximately 88 percent of the area sown in each of the last two years. The combined acreage of winter and spring wheat suggested for 1920 is about 86 percent of the acreage sown for the 1919 crop, slightly more than the acreage sown for the bumper crop of 1918 and about 4 percent less than the area sown for the 1918 crop.

The pressure of war demand for rye has ceased, and it does not seem probable that exports next year will greatly exceed 25,000,000 bushels. Consumption of rye in this country was stimulated by the war to about 60,000,000 bushels. If this rate of consumption is maintained, a crop of 75 to 80 million bushels would be necessary to provide 25,000,000 bushels for export, indicating a total acreage of 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 acres, in comparison with 5,800,000 acres sown last fall.

"In any consideration of the probable foreign demand for American wheat and rye based on pre-war consumption experience," says the department, "a greatly increased transportation cost and the existing condition of international exchange cannot be disregarded." "It seems clear that if the foreign exchange situation continues as it is or becomes more abnormal it will constitute a powerful stimulus for some foreign countries to seek grain in countries other than the United States, or to produce it."

It is probable that several years will be required for European countries to get back to their normal cattle population. In order to supply their needs it will be necessary for them to import dairy products, and at the present time this country is supplying large quantities. Last year's exports were so large that about 2,000,000,000 pounds of milk were required to make the products, or 100 pounds from each cow in the United States. The department expects that exports will decrease and imports will increase with the exception of condensed milk. It recommends that dairymen give particular attention to economical feeding, through the buying of concentrates in large lots or the co-operative buying of feeds; attention to pastures that have been allowed to run down; attention to the feeding needs of their cows by the use of cow-testing associations; and the best use of labor and labor-saving devices.

"What our foreign trade in meat and meat products will be in the future is impossible to predict with any degree of accuracy, owing to many factors which may affect it," the department says. "The exports will probably decrease as compared with the past year, as the European countries increase their production of live stock towards the pre-war production."

Other factors affecting American export trade are rates of exchange, which in many cases are decidedly unfavorable to those countries most in need of our meat products; campaigns being waged in the European countries for increased production and decreased consumption; prices of meats and meat products in this country as compared with the prices in other countries having means for export; available ocean tonnage for shipping from other countries.

However, pork exports at least probably will be greatly in excess next year of the pre-war annual exports. The European countries probably will require two years to get back to pre-war pork production, and their present needs are great.

Pre-war production of poultry in most European countries, the department says, will soon be resumed. Emphasis in this country is placed on more efficient methods of production. Whether increased production should be undertaken must necessarily depend on local conditions as to feed, labor, and other factors.

PRESIDENTIAL ENTHUSIASM.

President Wilson evidently let his enthusiasm get the better of his judgment Saturday at Los Angeles when he said it was "an ugly thing to propose that the United States shape its policy upon the principle of getting all it could at the expense of others."

Most people of this nation will agree that the big fight right now is to keep what we have and not let those who have worshiped at the throne of European royalty give away those things for which our fathers and sons have fought. Those who oppose the treaty in its present form are not asking for anything except a fair representation in the league of nations, the freedom from entanglements in European affairs and the right to conserve the institutions upon which this free country has been built.

The president some time ago pointed out that "the heart of the world would be broken" if the treaty was not swallowed whole by the United States. Saturday he declared "that the world would be in despair if America now deserted it."

America is not going to desert the world. The world will not let her. America has too much money, wheat, pork, beef and other necessities that Europe wants. But America does not wish to enter into any agreement which will involve her affairs to such an extent that she cannot conduct them without interference on the part of European politicians.

Most anything is likely to happen these days. People have become accustomed to sudden twists of the human mind which have brought them out of the rut

THE PUBLIC WILL DECIDE.

The first day of the steel strike showed the advantages of the opposing parties about equally divided. The killing of two strikers and wounding of several more is going to give the strike leaders an opportunity to recruit some of the more hysterical workers to the ranks of the men who walked out. Violence is what the radical leaders of the strike desire, no matter what is the cause of its inception into the difficulty.

If the strike could have continued several days without violence, it would have been settled in a short time. Violence delays settlement. It is true the men killed were members of a mob that attacked the police, but for propaganda purposes that will make little difference when those seeking trouble mount the stump to incite others to start more violence. That this will occur is almost a foregone conclusion.

Both sides should keep constantly before them the fact that success in this controversy will come to the side which considers the public—the consumer. It is a controversy between Judge Gary of the steel corporation on one side and radical labor leaders on the other. One side says the other has been unreasonable. The public has its own opinions in the matter. But the public is going to be the final board of arbitration in the matter and the side that uses the best judgment and is quickest to show consideration for that public is going to win.

This is a prediction held by many who believe that both sides have acted unwisely in allowing the situation to reach its present status.

It was a pretty word picture of the president smiling and bowing to the hundred little Japanese children who greeted him in the Jap section of Los Angeles. It is another picture of the Japanese military party putting the screws on the peace conference and insisting that Shantung be given to her. We wonder if the president, when viewing the children, thought of the millions in that Chinese province who were virtually held as slaves of Japan?

Can you imagine some of these old birds around here tripping down Milwaukee street clad in knee breeches of gaudy color? No, neither can we.

Meeting The War Debt

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director

Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

The United States treasury department has announced the details of a new financial plan. It states that Uncle Sam is now solvent; that he is no longer running behind in his obligations day by day; that he pays as he goes and has more money coming in than he spends.

This is a condition which has not existed since the war began. It is the great war back in the spring of 1917. The unprecedented expenditures necessary in carrying on that war were financed by the power of the nation to finance without going into debt. As a matter of fact the United States went in debt, piled up obligations, pyramided the war money as fast as it could get it, and by the time the war ended, the government was in a financial straits.

The period of debt accumulation amounted to roughly 27 months, which lasted from April 1917, to the end of June, 1919. In that 27 months the United States spent $2 and a half billion dollars. The maximum of debt accumulated was about $10 billion. After the armistice was signed, in the single month of December, 1918, this government paid out two billion dollars in interest on the war debt. The high water mark and began to decline, until for the month of June, 1919, the outflow amounted to eight hundred million dollars. Such was the drift backward toward normal.

Means to Borrow Devised.
All the time the stupendous war expense was piling up the treasury department and the congress were devising means for borrowing the amount needed to meet the emergency and for increasing the revenue from taxation, that the government might pay as much of the expenses as was possible out of current revenues. The dominating factor in the whole program was the liberty and victory loans. Through these the government piled up over twenty-one billion dollars and from that fund, plus its bonds and incidental short-term certificates, it paid its way.

At this time, when the spending period is past, it is of interest to the public to determine just what this war venture of ours has cost. We have the figure of $2 and a half billion as the item of expenditure up to June 30, last. Had the war not been in existence our expenditures through that time would probably have been about a billion dollars a year, or two and a quarter billions for the period. Subtracting these normal expenditures from the 22 and a half billions we have 30 billions, roughly, which should be charged up to the war. Another credit item, which we may deduct from that 30 billions is the nine billions which was owned by the nation of Europe at the time the war broke out. So the sum total of net loss due to the war seems to be about 21 billion dollars.

Losses Paid Short.
A few months ago the treasury department was estimating our possible indebtedness when our obligations were met, as from 24 billion dollars. Fortune favored us in a number of ways, however, and it is now evident that the debt will not be that large. We have the loss of 9 billion dollars through the guarantee of $2.50 for wheat, while as a matter of fact we had had no loss at all on that score. The loss on the ship building program of the nation has not been as great as was anticipated for the reason that the market on ships has been exorbitant and it has been possible to sell many of them in such a way as to avoid loss and sometimes even at a profit. So the debt has been whittled down, and it is now evident that it will not amount to more than 15 billion dollars and that it will probably be under that figure.

This debt of 15 billion dollars, to be sure, is a nice little burden to carry through the decades that are to come. In the first place the mere annual interest of 12 percent on 15 billion dollars is only 180 million dollars. A measure of this amount may be gained by comparing it with a billion dollar expenditure before the war. The government was adequate to run the government for a year.

In addition to this annual interest charge which the taxpayer and public must face, is the course advisable to arrange for the ultimate payment of the national debt. It is not generally appreciated by the public that the debt already has been made. When congress passed the victory loan bill it provided a sinking fund which will eventually wipe out our whole war debt.

Slate Is Sponged.
Section six of the victory loan act lays the foundation for taking care of this huge item. The experts of the treasury department worked out a neat little program in mathematics which is so easy to understand that it is now being spread by the press. Experts show that any debt may be discharged in a period of 23 years.

by a very simple procedure. The plan is as follows:
Whatever the amount of debt, appropriate two and one-half percent of that debt each year and put it in the sinking fund. This money so appropriated is then invested in four and one-half percent bonds. The interest which it accumulates, will wipe out the debt in 23 years. This is true if the debt is a thousand dollars, a million dollars or a billion dollars. It is true of the 15 billion dollar debt which the United States has accumulated. The positive elimination of that debt has been provided for by law in this sinking fund section of the victory loan act.

Two and one-half percent of 15 billion dollars is 225 million dollars, or nearly half as much money as was necessary to run the government for a year before the war is for a period of 23 years, to go annually into the war debt sinking fund. The taxpayers have got to provide that amount of money in addition to the interest that must be paid on the debt. The interest of eight percent on the 15 billion dollars, plus the sinking fund payment of 450 million dollars, give a total of one billion, two hundred and fifty million dollars, which the government must provide for by the sinking fund section of the victory loan act.

This means that the amount of taxes that the government must raise, now that the war is over, is a little more than twice as much as the amount of money it was called upon to raise before the war came. The government is quite nonchalant in meeting the necessary tax burdens to pay current expenses, interest and sinking fund, and to have a considerable item of velvet after those obligations are met.

The income of the treasury department for the current year will be six and a half billion dollars—about enough to pay the interest on the debt. In that figure there will be victory loan installments to the amount of one billion dollars. They are an annual resource, which will not be included in the future annual income schedule. The present tax scheme, however, will produce five and a half billion dollars a year, and this is much more money than will be needed to run the government, pay interest on its indebtedness, and provide for its sinking fund. Two and a half billion should do this.

So does it become evident that taxes may be reduced as much as one-half and leave the government a sufficient sum of money for current expenses, or the rate may be kept high and the money go toward the more rapid reduction of the national debt. At any rate, the whole financial problem of this government is now on a very firm basis where the only vision of the future is the view of quite adequate funds from our great national prosperity to finance us and eventually to lift that stupendous burden which the war has placed upon us.

Pinky Kerr says he'd just as leave wear a cigar box as a sailor hat. The poorest economy we know of is a home-made sign.

ASK US

Q. What is the idea of a "hope chest"?
A. Hope chests are often kept by young women in anticipation of the time when they will be married. Into these chests go linens, lingerie, and other particularly nice articles such as wedding presents by the bride. Hope chests are usually made of cedar and are often artistically attractive.

Q. Who wrote "Under the Greenwood Tree"?
A. Thomas Hardy, the British novelist, is the author of this book. He was born in Dorsetshire in 1862.

Q. Where does iodine come from?
A. The principal source of iodine is seaweed. It is refined from kelp chiefly on the coasts of Ireland, France and Spain.

Q. Has any provision been made for paying the national debt?
A. The victory loan act laid down the scheme for paying off the debt due to the war. This scheme contemplates the annual appropriation of a sum equal to two and a half percent of the debt. This sum will be invested in four and a half percent bonds. Such sums so invested will pay off the debt in 23 years.

Q. Is the United States taking any measure toward pensioning old folks?
A. This proposal has never progressed beyond the discussion stage in the United States senate. It has long been an actuality, however, in such countries as England and Germany.

Q. What was the largest popular vote ever received by a president of the United States?
A. The largest popular vote was that received by Woodrow Wilson in 1916, amounting to a little over 6,000,000. Four years earlier Wilson had received about seven and a half million, while Taft, in 1908, received a little over six and a quarter million. The increase is due to the growth in population and the admission of women to suffrage.

Q. What is the "water cure"?
A. The water cure was a sort of punishment said to have been administered to natives in the Philippines after the United States took over these islands. It consisted of running water into the victim until his discomfort or fright led him to confession or adequately punished him for his offense.

Q. What is the Matterhorn?
A. This is one of the principal peaks in the Alps and therefore one of the natural wonders of the world visited by tourists.

Q. Is it possible for a man with a criminal record to enlist in the army?
A. The judge advocate general has ruled that a man with a criminal record may not be admitted to the army, even though he served honorably during the late war.

Voice of the People

To the Sunday Morning Gaffer:
It is easier to clean your throat and tell another what you do not like about him than it is to open your ears to hear his unfavorable news of you. I have now the easier part of this business, and I earnestly hope the party of the second part will distinguish my plain words from any spirit of carping criticism.

Frankly, I regret that so many men of leadership seem to me to fail to see life whole in real man fashion.

I am speaking of the Sunday morning golfer. Do you really vote for a Sundayless civilization? Do you frankly decide against religion? Are you prepared to take your children to the golf grounds rather than send them for voluntary religious instruction to a Sunday school, penalizing both by your Sunday morning pleasures? Would you prefer your business and investments, if possible, in a churchless community?

Now, of course if you believe in thoroughly secularizing life, your practice implies and surely tends, I can find no fault in behalf of the community that you, who are able to find other playthings, should choose just that time especially set apart for religion for your personal pleasure; although I would disagree heartily with your selfish and mustered that experience puts them heavily on the defensive.

If, however, after all you have girded yourself for Sunday, not for life, and believe in your heart, as I do, that life needs to be spiritualized in the highest divine and human way, when you set off for golf, you do a very small and antisocial thing, and you know it. I wonder if it isn't time for all upstanding men to stop.

What do you think? Come on.

MONSERRAT.
Monserrat, the famous shrine in the Spanish province of Barcelona, illustrates the effect which high mountains have on men. When you climb to the top of a high mountain you feel worshipping, and at peace with the universe. Monserrat is an outlying spur of the Pyrenees, which stands all alone, splendidly dominating a rich plain. It is one of the most ancient and famous of the Catholic shrines. According to legend, many centuries ago an image of the Virgin was found at the top of the mountain, and it was impossible to move the image. This it was shown to men that they should build a shrine on the mountain.

Yet Monserrat will always be a shrine. Before Christ, the Romans had a temple of Venus there, and before that, more than likely, the worshipped their gods on the mountain tops.

Worship is veritably grows in the soil at Monserrat.

Soft Duvetyn Is Leading Suit Fabric

Expensive and lovely are the words best describing the new fall suits. The materials predominating are the soft duvetyns, silver tones and wool velours as soft as velvet and falling in graceful lines as chiffon. The great cost of one of these handsome suits is justified when one takes into consideration the fact that the silk and wool duvetyn is priced at $18 and $20 the yard. The work on many of these lovely suits is as perfect as can be turned out from any tailor shop and the general "tail" is as smart and well set up as any one can desire.

No one can deny the supremacy of the American woman's tailored suits. While the change has been laid at our doors that we are monotonously garbed in our street apparel because the dark blue suit has come to be the accepted street garment at the same time every one concedes that no other woman has so smart and well groomed an appearance as have ours.

Selecting one's suit for the season is like building the foundation for a house, for after that is accomplished everything else may be added. This year the brown and wood tones are predominating at least in the first showings.

Of course, it is apparent that fur is to play a prominent part in the trimmings of all suits this year, adding to price and beauty as we said in the beginning. For the most part the natural skins are used and the less expensive animals, such as squirrel, beaver, nutria and raccoon. So many women prefer the untrimmed suit with which their own furs may be worn that this need can be filled in great choice. As to the length of the coat, that is determined in many instances by the wearer's height and the length of the skirt, for one sees three quarter length, hip length and some with an extended panel in the back reaching some inches below the rest of the coat.

The so-called three-piece suit will also be popular this season. It will be made of velvet or duvetyn, sometimes of tricotine. A straight line one-piece frock and a long or short suit coat to match will be the mode.

There are three exquisitely fashioned suits. The one at the left is a jade blue duvetyn trimmed with opossum fur. Silk tassels weight two long panels which form a trim for the skirt, although they are part of the coat. A black velvet hat trimmed with paradise feathers is a fitting headpiece for such a suit. The suit in the center is built on novel lines. Both the hat and suit are made of dark maroon wool duvetyn and both are trimmed with monkey fur. The faring poplum of the coat gives a smart silhouette and the monkey fur trimming gives soft graceful lines. The collar is a unique feature with the fur set on the underneath side. The suit at the right is a three-piece one of dark blue velvet. There is a bodice of metal brocade and metal brocade drapery on the side of the skirt. The collar and cuffs are of skunk and the large saucer-like hat is of velvet to match. Natural paradise feathers about the brim as a trimming. The hat of the same fabric as the suit is the smartest of the four.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

"THE QUIET LIFE."
I do not want to be a king
Or potentate or anything
Like that. I do not want to night;
I want to get my sleep at night.
I can go home and sit at ease
And hold my kid upon my knees
And look out on my garden plot
And take in a picture show.
And not be nervous when I go
For fear some titled enemy
Will drop a liddie bomb on me.
I get no diplomatic note
Which stirs me up and gets my goat.
No murder is upon my soul.
For world dominion's not my goal.
I'm happy as a common job.
Who's got a home, also a job.
I would not trade my taste of mind
With any one of royal kind.
I would not trade my old felt hat
For all the caps and helmets that
Are worn in any crazy realm
That seeks to slay and overwhelm.
I would not trade my little cot
For any castle they have got.
I would not trade for the fray
To burn and loot, outrage and slay.

It will always be a matter of regret to us that Lempe and Trozky didn't see the Pershing parades.

Warmth Plus Economy For Stucco Houses

See how Flaxlinum is adapted for stucco building.

First comes the Flaxlinum, then one thickness of heavy saturated and coated asphalt paper, then No. 1 White Pine beveled lath—the three combined being known as FLAXLINUM KEYBOARD.

It is nailed directly over the sheathing. The stucco is laid over the lath. Thus you have a warm, dry stucco house, perfectly insulated, at the greatest economy of labor and materials.

But to make assurance doubly sure, don't neglect the roof. It is here that the torrid summer sun beats hardest and the inside heat escapes easiest in winter. Line it with Flaxlinum. It is the cheapest investment in house comfort you can make. You save one-third your fuel bill besides.

Flaxlinum and Flaxlinum Keyboard are sold by leading building material dealers everywhere. It is specified by the best architects and endorsed by reputable contractors. If you do not know the name of your nearest Flaxlinum dealer, write us. Free sample and literature sent on request. In writing, please state what kind of building you are interested in.

His wife, who was Mrs. Dorothy Park Benjamin of New York city, accompanied her husband and his fourteen-year-old son by a former marriage, Enrico Jr. Caruso is soon to leave for Mexico, where he will sing under Carranza's protection. ## Indian "Medicine Man," Last of "Cult," Dies at 109

[By International News.] Prince Rupert, B. C.—"Skookum Charlie" Williams, 109 years old, last of the medicine men of the "People of the Rabbit," is dead on the reserve of his tribe on the Skeena river, 90 miles inland from Prince Rupert.

The venerable Indian was once the most powerful medicine man of the coast tribes. His medicine was considered a panacea not only for physical, but spiritual ills. He cured the sick, exercised evil spirits and safeguarded his patrons against the malignant influence of demons and ghosts. He grew rich, as Indian wealth is reckoned, by his incantations and his sale of charms and amulets.

Exhibits Plane Which Will Rise Vertically

[By International News.] New York.—The model of a new airplane which will rise vertically, is being exhibited at the rooms of the Aeronautical society here by W. J. Beach, an inventor. The fundamental principle of Mr. Beach's invention is that it is lifted straight up from the ground by means of revolving propellers rotated from their outer periphery. Horizontal and longitudinal stability are assured by revolving ailerons and stabilizers. Because of the revolutionary effect such a plane would have on the airplane market, the exhibit is attracting more than passing attention.

THE DOT RED CROSS
By Clifford Leon Sherman

With the arrival of the carter the trip seemed much safer and Mildred and the captain, but her army friend—had much more interest in one another. He told her of all his ambitions and hinted that he hoped he would see her if he came back from the battlefield alive. And while they were watching the moon he asked her if he might give her a keepsake, one that his father had given to his mother when he went to the war of the 50's.

It was later claimed and identified by Jacob Schick, a local grocer, who gave Delio $100 in cash as a reward.
